

WCBD FUTURE PHYSICIAN AWARDS

A GRANT FROM THE WHITE COATS BLACK DOCTORS FOUNDATION

STEPHANIE NWAGYU

2016 FUTURE PHYSICIAN AWARD RECIPIENT

Stephanie is a 2017 graduate from Baylor University, with a degree in Health Science and double minor in Medical Humanities and Biology. Her resume boasts an exemplary commitment to leadership and academic excellence. She worked as a Peer Leader for freshman pre-medical students, was President of the Multicultural Association of Pre-Medical Students, and was on Baylor's African Dance team. Off-campus, she created an after-school program for a Waco, TX middle school, that introduced Latino and African-American students to science and medicine. We encourage aspiring doctors to look at Stephanie's path as one example of how to be a standout medical school applicant. Stephanie will matriculate at the University of Colorado School of Medicine this fall.

ABOUT THE AWARD

AWARD IMPACT

To alleviate the financial burden of applying to medical school, WCBD will cover the full cost of the award recipient's MCAT registration, or apply the value toward their AMCAS fees.

To make a financial contribution toward this grant, visit: tiny.cc/donatetowcbd

APPLICATION REQUIREMENTS

- Full-time junior or senior undergraduate
- Demonstrated progress toward medical school pre-requisite courses
- Completed online application including personal statement, resume, and unofficial transcript
- Visit tiny.cc/futuredocaward for details

The White Coats Black Doctors Foundation is a 501c3 whose purpose is to celebrate, unite, and uplift Black medical students and physicians, and to support the development of future Black physicians.